Exit 232 was founded by acclaimed singer/songwriter, Todd Musselman. For nearly 15 years, the folk rock band has thrilled audiences across Colorado with their tremendous energy and their proven ability to entertain audiences of all ages. Melding the essence of American rock and in the styles of The Eagles, Bruce Springsteen, and The Bodeans, Exit 232 combines the very best of folk, rock, pop, and country, while entertaining and captivating audiences with their sincerity and power.

Exit 232's CD catalog includes their critically acclaimed 2000 release, "Touch the Doubt, and their latest 2003 release, "Highway of Life", which has been met with rave reviews.

Some of the band's performance highlights include the following:

- Opening act for the Paul Simon/Brian Wilson Tour at Fiddlers Green
- Opening act for Better Than Ezra at the Hard Rock Café main stage at the Aspen Music Festival
- Television appearances in 2001, 2002, and 2003, on local NBC affiliate, KUSA's 9NEWS Summer Concert Series
- Performances at the 2000, 2001, and 2002 Cherry Creek Arts Festivals

Reviews

Denver Local Music Scene – April 2003:

(review of Exit 232's latest CD, Highway of Life)

"It's really a shame that American Rock doesn't get more mainstream attention because this CD is a fantastic example of what happens when American rock gets a dose of Colorado flavor and is topped off with some catchy pop. Every song is crafted well and executed with total professionalism. It's obvious that this band has their act down to a science and it's safe to say that they are 100% skilled in their craft."

Randy Barber from NBC affiliate KUSA – June 2002:

"It's not just the group's music that's been a hit. Don't get me wrong, these guys rock... but Exit 232's attitude is also admirable. You won't meet a nicer group of guys. When they're playing, you can tell that they're having a great time. Their energy and excitement is contagious"

RIFF Music Magazine – September 2001:

"Exit 232 is a Colorado band worth seeing in a live show....From the bluegrass inflected "Coming Home" to the very soulful live rendition of the title track "Touch the Doubt", Exit 232 carries the Colorado legacy of funky beats and melodic Rocky Mountain rock to the highest level..."

Chris Kresge - Colorado Musicians Allied Promotions:

"Stand up and cheer for this Colorado band. Colorado is known for some of the tastiest tunage in the country going all the way back to the heyday of Caribou Ranch and to the present day success of bands like Big Head Todd and the Monsters, Leftover Salmon and String Cheese Incident ... add Exit 232 to the mix."
